

2017 FEDERAL CAPITAL BUDGET PULLOUT

(Improving Fiscal Governance in Maternal, Newborn and Child Health)

USAID
FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE

Centre for Social Justice

INTRODUCTION

The 2017 Capital Budget Pull-Out on Maternal, Newborn and Child Health (MNCH) is a continuation of the tradition established by Centre for Social Justice (CSJ) and its cluster members in the Citizens Wealth Platform (CWP) to inform and empower Nigerians to follow the money. The aim is to provide in one pamphlet information that is scattered across hundreds of pages in the federal budget and therefore not very easy and convenient for citizens who want to follow up to find.

The federal budget is funded with public resources, which belongs to the Nigerian commonwealth. The expectation is that majority of Nigerians should be interested in the disbursement of the resources and their utilization to pay for the items provided in the budget. In the past, budget resources have been mismanaged, abused and diverted leading to poor value for money and the failure of government's plans and policies. Federal budgets have been given several names such as budgets of hope, consolidation, change, etc. But at the end of the day, instead of changing for the better, Nigerians are faced with deeper poverty and deprivation. The story must and needs to change. And it can only change with citizens' engagement, monitoring and tracking public expenditures and thereby exercising a citizens' oversight over the management and administration of public resources.

In this edition, there seems to be a proliferation of Primary Health Centres in the federal budget. It is either new ones will be built or existing ones are being refurbished but there is no indication of Federal Government's cooperation with states and local governments who should be the owners and operators of the PHCs. Again, there are billions of Naira allocated under Service Wide Votes for non disaggregated projects under the Sustainable Development Goals and special intervention funds. The opportunities for citizens' participation in the budgeting process are limited and we must make use of the few opportunities available for project monitoring.

We expect improvements in MNCH indicators at the end of the implementing year, reduced out of pocket expenditure for health for the ordinary Nigerian and movement towards definite steps for the realization of universal health care. Members of our Cluster in CWP and others are expected to mobilise and monitor the procurement process of the capital budget and its actual implementation and report to the secretariat of CWP for documentation. This compilation of capital projects makes it easy for monitors to locate the projects in their zone and states and follow up on implementation by engaging the contractors, the communities and the relevant MDAs.
